PRESS NORTHWARD ROUNDING UP THE FLEEING REBELS

GOVERNMENT REPORTS ASSERT
OVER 1,000 INSURGENTS
KILLED AT REFORMA

GEN. ESCOBAR'S ARMY REPORT-
ED ALSO LOSING 2,000 PRISON-
ERS, 500 WOUNDED

By G. F. FINE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, April 5.—Victorious federal troops continued to press northward today to round up remnants of the insurgent Escobar army, in full retreat from Reforma, where, according to government reports, more than 1,000 rebels were killed in battle.

The official announcement said Escobar's army of approximately 5,000 men also lost 2,000 prisoners and 500 wounded in the "butchery" at Reforma.

General Juan A. Almazan, who commanded the federal attack at Reforma, reported to Minister of War Plutarco Elias Calles that he expected his cavalry to reach Camargo, 40 miles north of Jiminez, early today. He said he did not expect any concerted resistance from the rebels until the federal army arrived at Chihuahua City, the insurgent stronghold.

Meanwhile the federal army of 5,000 men, which has been held in reserve at Torreon pending results in the Jiminez sector, was preparing for its southern campaign against the Cristeros, the religious rebels.

This army, which will be led by General Cedillo, was reinforced by approximately 1,000 troops from Vera Cruz, it was announced.

The Cedillo column will campaign in Guanajuato, Jalisco and Zacatecas. It will concentrate in Zacatecas and the first section of the troops will strike in Durango.

General Calles notified the government that General Almazan was of the opinion that the rebel rout was decisive and the dispersed groups were not likely to re-unite.

Calles' messages to the government came from Torreon, and reported that both the federal and rebel injured were sent to hospitals at Monterey and Torreon. Calles said that no figures of federal casualties were available because the check-up had not been completed.

Federal officials explained that the extraordinary number of rebel dead at Reforma was due to the strategic movements of the federal troops in practically surrounding the rebels. The insurgents, they said, were attacked on the open desert, from the sides and from the rear, while aviators bombed them from the air.

As a result of federal maneuvers, the rebels were trapped and "mowed down in columns."

The rebels on the west coast also have evacuated Culiacan, according to dispatches received here. The insurgents were being pursued northward, toward San Blas.

Washington, April 5.—Secretary of State Stimson has requested the navy department to send another American destroyer to protect American lives on the west coast of Mexico, it was announced today.

Stimson also caused instructions to be sent to military authorities on the Arizona border to protest against bombs falling in Naco, Arizona.

Major Gen. Lassiter was instructed, Stimson said, to take such measures on the border as to make effective the second protest against indiscriminate use of bombs.

Shortly after the railroad man arrived at St. Luke's hospital, Mrs. Mildred Fish appeared, accompanied by Mrs. Ida Fish, who announced she also was the wife of Fish.

Mrs. Mildred Fish said she and Fish were married eleven years ago in Pittsburgh. His work brought him to Chicago, she said, where they were happy until a few days ago.

Then came a telegram from Mrs. Ida White, Mrs. Fish said, announcing that she was going to visit Fish. She came and Fish took her to his home, introducing her as a religious worker.

The next day, Mrs. Fish said, the two disappeared. Two days ago, Mrs. Mildred Fish said, she received a telegram from her husband in Oklahoma City, asking her forgiveness. I'M ALONE PROBE CONTINUES, CANADA PROTESTS SINKING

Ottawa, April 5.—(U.P.)—A lengthy communication bearing upon the sinking of the Canadian schooner "I'm Alone" is on its way to Washington from the Dominion government to the U. S. government. It is addressed to the Canadian minister, Hon. Vincent Massey, who will hand it to Secretary of State Stimson.

It probably will be left to American authorities to decide what publicity it is to be given.

FEDERAL OFFICERS

Detroit, Mich., April 5.—(U.P.)—Federal officers today investigated real estate offices, electric light company offices and motor truck salesmen of a gigantic underground brewery in an effort to locate the owners, unearthed yesterday after ten arduous hours of excavation work.

These pipes led to an apartment house where the trail apparently stopped. Learning of the existence of a large hidden basement beneath the building, officers used picks and shovels and located an underground brewery.

CRIPPLED SHIP ENTERS PORT, MYSTERY BOAT

HER MASTER MISSING, OWNER AND 2 SAILORS HELD FOR HEARING

AUTHORITIES OF PHILADELPHIA
SEEK TO UNRAVEL STORY
OF NOMAD

Philadelphia, April 5.—(U.P.)—Her master missing and her owner and two sailors held for hearing before a U. S. commissioner, the auxiliary schooner Nomad put into port here early today, a crippled ship with a mystery voyage ended.

Her owner, Leland H. Ross, New York and Jersey City society man, said that Capt. John D. Schofield had been washed overboard by a huge wave while he was in the masts.

Ross and his two men, Richard J. French and Henry G. Bush, were in a daze when the craft was located, floating off Cape May with her New York yacht club design flying at distress. The coast guard reported finding bottles aboard, and there were reports originally from guard sources that the men were in a stupor.

But, according to Customs Officer Luther Sterner, who brought the Nomad into port in the morning hours, it was hunger and exhaustion—not liquor—which had dazed the men, causing them to let the schooner reel in the seas without a helmsman.

Sterner, in charge of bringing the Nomad to Philadelphia from Cape May, was advised Ross put his wife ashore at Charleston, S. C. Hardly had the ship left that port 11 days ago when she developed engine trouble.

Despite all attempts by Ross and Schofield to repair the machinery, the boat would not run on her own power. Then the master ordered full sails set. For days the ship floundered making little or no progress.

During a terrific squall last Saturday, Captain Schofield fell into the sea. He was not seen again by Ross or crew, they reported.

The three men tried vainly to control the ship, it was said. A distress signal was hoisted on the 125-foot pleasure vessel.

The engine room and stores became flooded. The decks were washed by waves. The men became panic stricken. They were found in a stupor by the coast guard.

Sterner would not discuss the report that 40 bottles of liquor had been found opened in the captain's quarters.

MATIC CONSIDERATION IN WASHINGTON, LONDON

STATE DEPARTMENT PREPARES
NOTE CONTESTING BRIT-
ISH CLAIMS

Washington, April 5.—(U.P.)—An Anglo-American disagreement over sovereignty in Antarctica where Commander Richard E. Byrd is encamped with planes today is a matter of diplomatic consideration in Washington and London.

The state department has prepared a note contesting certain British claims in Antarctica. A British note to this government in connection with the Byrd project and claiming British sovereignty over virtually all of the Antarctic region was the cause of the drafting of the American note.

British claims are considered here to be so all-inclusive that practically any future discoveries Byrd or any other American might make would be liable to claim by Great Britain.

It was realization of this situation which prompted this government to prepare a reply to the British note which, after reciting the extent of British claims said Byrd would be welcome to alight on British territory in carrying out his Antarctic explorations.

He promised he would leave Germany as soon as his condition improved.

CRIPPLED SHIP ENTERS PORT, MYSTERY BOAT

HER MASTER MISSING, OWNER AND 2 SAILORS HELD FOR HEARING

AUTHORITIES OF PHILADELPHIA
SEEK TO UNRAVEL STORY
OF NOMAD

Philadelphia, April 5.—(UP)—Her master missing and her owner and two sailors held for hearing before a U. S. commissioner, the auxiliary schooner Nomad put into port here early today, a crippled ship with a mystery voyage ended.

Her owner, Leland H. Ross, New York and Jersey City society man, said that Capt. John D. Schofield had been washed overboard by a huge wave while he was in the masts.

Ross and his two men, Richard J. French and Henry G. Bush, were in a daze when the craft was located, floundering off Cape May with her New York yacht club design flying at distress. The coast guard reported finding bottles aboard, and there were reports originally from guard sources that the men were in a stupor.

But, according to Customs Officer Luther Sterner, who brought the Nomad into port in the morning hours, it was hunger and exhaustion—not liquor—which had dazed the men, causing them to let the schooner reel in the seas without a helmsman.

Sterner, in charge of bringing the Nomad to Philadelphia from Cape May, was advised Ross put his wife ashore at Charleston, S. C. Hardly had the ship left that port 11 days ago when she developed engine trouble.

Despite all attempts by Ross and Schofield to repair the machinery, the boat would not run on her own power. Then the master ordered full sail set. For days the ship floundered making little or no progress.

During a terrific squall last Saturday, Captain Schofield fell into the sea. He was not seen again by Ross or crew, they reported.

The three men tried vainly to control the ship, it was said. A distress signal was hoisted on the 125-foot pleasure vessel.

The engine room and stores became flooded. The decks were washed by waves. The men became panic stricken. They were found in a stupor by the coast guard.

Sterner would not discuss the report that 40 bottles of liquor had been found opened in the captain's quarters.

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 5.—(UP)—Mrs. Catherine Lotocko, a widow, was shot four times and killed today, orphaning her four-year-old son Michael, because she accepted a ten-cent bag of candy from one of her admirers.

Harry Klym, 32, who police say, confessed to shooting Mrs. Lotocko as she lay in bed in her apartment next door, told authorities he was in love with the widow and was aroused to learn she had accepted candy from another man.

Mrs. Lotocko died in St. Catherine's hospital.

FRENCH CRUISER CARRIES REMAINS OF HERRICK

CARRIES BACK TO HOMELAND BODY OF AMBASSADOR TO FRANCE

FRENCH MARINE DETACHMENT
ABOARD AS AN HONOR ESCORT

Brest, France, April 5.—(UP)—The new French cruiser, Tourville, slipped out of the harbor here this morning carrying back to his homeland the body of Myron T. Herrick, who served under four presidents as American ambassador to Paris.

The body of the ambassador was placed aboard the cruiser this morning after the arrival here of the special train which carried the funeral party from Paris.

A French marine detachment was aboard the gray cruiser as an honor escort.

The Tourville sailed at 11:40 A. M. The Tourville, although capable of a cruising speed of 35 knots and rated as one of the fastest cruisers on the ocean, will maintain a funeral pace of 20 knots across the Atlantic. It was announced, so that the Aquitania, leaving tomorrow, may land in New York next Friday, April 12, an hour ahead of the Tourville.

The Aquitania will carry Mrs. Parnely Herrick and close friends of the late ambassador's family.

LONG BRINGS FIGHT INTO OPEN

GOVERNOR OF LOUISIANA FIGHTS AGAINST IMPEACHMENT PROCEEDINGS

Baton Rouge, La., April 5.—(UP)—Governor Huey P. Long today brought his fight to prevent impeachment into the open.

As the state house of representatives gathered for the third day of hearing on 19 charges of impeachment against him, it was confronted by a resolution passed by 4,000 of his enthusiastic supporters, asking that all articles of impeachment be cast out.

The resolution was passed at a mass meeting last night, which climaxed an all-day demonstration of Long supporters from all parts of the state.

Picturing himself as the champion of an oppressed people, the youthful governor swept the crowd with him in a dramatic and impassioned speech of defense. His accusers were following "the old corrupt system of politics," he said.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO SHOOTING, SLAYING CORPORAL BOZIK

Mitchell, 32, alias Carl Layton, a former member of C Company, Third Infantry, who was alleged to have shot and killed Corporal Samuel Bozik, 30, during an attempted hold-up early Sunday at Fort Snelling, pleaded not guilty to a first degree murder indictment here late Thursday.

Judge W. A. Cant took under advisement a request by United States District Attorney L. L. Dril, that Mitchell be brought to trial during the present term of federal court.

The penalty for conviction of first degree murder on a government reservation is death, either before a firing squad or by hanging.

ENGLAND AND U. S. ARE IN DISAGREEMENT

MATTER TAKEN UNDER DIPLO-MATIC CONSIDERATION IN WASHINGTON, LONDON

STATE DEPARTMENT PREPARES
NOTE CONTESTING BRIT-ISH CLAIMS

Washington, April 5.—(UP)—An Anglo-American disagreement over sovereignty in Antarctica where Commander Richard E. Byrd is encamped with planes today is a matter of diplomatic consideration in Washington and London.

The state department has prepared a note contesting certain British claims in Antarctica. A British note to this government in connection with the Byrd project and claiming British sovereignty over virtually all of the Antarctic region was the cause of the drafting of the American note.

British claims are considered here to be so all-inclusive that practically any future discoveries Byrd or any other American might make would be liable to claim by Great Britain.

It was realization of this situation which prompted this government to prepare a reply to the British note which, after reciting the extent of British claims said Byrd would be welcome to alight on British territory in carrying out his Antarctic explorations.

FARM RELIEF HEARINGS CLOSE

MONDAY SENATE AND HOUSE COMMITTEES WILL DRAFT BILLS

Washington, April 5.—(UP)—Farm relief hearings will be closed today by both the senate and house agricultural committees and Monday both will begin drafting the farm bills to be presented to the special session of congress a week later.

Leaders on the senate committee believe they have a majority lined up in favor of the McNary bill carrying $300,000,000 to be administered in loans by a federal farm board to co-operative organizations. The democrats are leaning to the debenture plan which may be submitted to the senate in a minority report.

Sentiment is less clearly crystallized on the house side but leaders expect a similar bill will be prepared there.

LINCOLN P. T. A.

Entertained by Ohitaya and Waditaka Camp Fire Girls, Who Serve Luncheon

The Lincoln P. T. A. held its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon. The Ohitaya and Waditaka Camp Fire girls served a splendid lunch and put on an excellent program which proved not only interesting, but very instructive. It consisted of songs, folk dances and the following demonstrations: first aid bandaging, bed making with a patient in bed, filling a hot water bottle and an ice cap, making an emergency stretcher and carrying a patient upon it.

Talks were also given on Camp Fire and on camping. The demonstrations were cleverly performed by the girls. This proved that the Camp Fire organization is very valuable to any community and should receive backing.

The Lincoln P. T. A. is having a food sale at Newman's store Saturday afternoon. Mrs. A. A. Steinfeld is chairman of this committee and would be glad to receive donations.

STUNT PARTY GIVEN NEXT WEDNESDAY

Circles of First Congregational Church Will Participate in Joyous Program

ALL NEW SURPRISES

Each Circle Will Limit Its Entertainment to Fifteen Minutes

The Circles of the First Congregational church will give their annual Stunt Party, the prime funfest of the church year next Wednesday evening, April 10.

The stunts will be entirely different from last year, with each Circle planning to spring a surprise on the others and on the public.

Each Circle will limit its entertainment to 15 minutes but it is rumored that some may resort to the legislative custom of turning the clock back in order to keep strictly within this limit. It is suggested that the audience limit their laughs to one minute each to keep the program within the time limit. The advance notice states that there will be no limit on noise, that the audience may be as uproarious as it pleases.

After this gentle excitement of risibilities, the palates will be tickled by a tempting lunch.

DECKER'S IOWANA

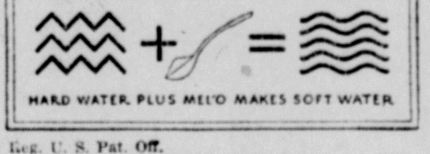

HAM & BACON

DECKER'S Iowa Hams and Bacons are selected from the finest young porkers that graze in Iowa's corn belt. For many weeks prior to smoking, these two products are subjected to a slow and natural cure. This explains their richer, country-style flavor.

No wonder after folks put their lips to the sweet and tender slices of Iowa Ham and Bacon, the name DECKER is put there regularly in the future. Any dealer in quality meats can get these products for you. Buy them in the whole piece!

THE TASTE IS SO GOOD

This is a hard-water country

SOAP and hard water make scum. The hardness in the water combines with the soap. The scum collects dirt. There is a dirty ring around the dishpan, the washbasin, the bathtub. But softened hard water with Melo and no scum forms.

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. It makes the soap much more effective, too, saving from 1/3 to 1/2 the amount ordinarily used. Melo only costs 10 cents a can. You can afford to buy 3 cans and keep one in the kitchen, one in the laundry, and one in the bathroom. Get it at your grocer's.

At the battle of Cannae during the Punic wars the Romans were practically annihilated, and the loss of citizens was perhaps greater than in any other defeat that befell the republic. The field army numbered 85,000.

DECKER'S IOWANA

HAM & BACON

DECKER'S Iowa Hams and Bacons are selected from the finest young porkers that graze in Iowa's corn belt. For many weeks prior to smoking, these two products are subjected to a slow and natural cure. This explains their richer, country-style flavor.

No wonder after folks put their lips to the sweet and tender slices of Iowa Ham and Bacon, the name DECKER is put there regularly in the future. Any dealer in quality meats can get these products for you. Buy them in the whole piece!

THE TASTE IS SO GOOD

This is a hard-water country

SOAP and hard water make scum. The hardest in the water combines with the soap. The scum collects dirt. There is a dirty ring around the dishpan, the bathtub, the bathtub. But softer hard water with Melo and no scum forms.

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. It makes the soap much more effective, too, saving from 1/3 to 1/2 the amount ordinarily used. Melo only costs 10 cents a can. You can afford to buy 3 cans and keep one in the kitchen, one in the laundry, and one in the bathroom. Get it at your grocer's.

WHAT THEY DIDN'T SAY

A REPORTER once made a great jest out of finding on the desk of a governor only one book—a volume of practical quotations that showed signs of hard usage. The governor was noted for his lack of originality, and his speeches were merely strings of wiser men's words. This much must be said for that good man—when he quoted, he was accurate, and that is no small accomplishment, says the Kansas City Star.

A classic in the artlessness of misquotation is the one cited by a New York columnist, whose friend twisted "Poems are made by fools like me, But only God can make a tree," into "Poems are made by fools like me, But God can only make a tree."

Because he is more widely quoted than any other poet, Shakespeare heads the lists of those sinned against. Hamlet did not say, "Alas, poor Yorick! I knew him well, Horatio," but "Alas, poor Yorick! I knew him, Horatio." Portia ("Merchant of Venice") it was who said, "All that glitters is not gold." She did not say "glitters." Again in "Hamlet" we find, "Though I am native here, and to the manner born." Logically, if inaccurately, it is often quoted, "to the manor born."

It is also common to accredit to a poet lines he never dreamed of. "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast," is from the pen of William Congreve, not that of the Bard of Avon. Incidentally, the last word of the line is not "beast." A line often accredited to the Bible is, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb," from Sterne's "Sentimental Journey." It was Rodman Drake who wrote:

"None knew thee, but to love thee, Nor named thee, but to praise," not Oliver Goldsmith.

One can credit the wrong man with words and still be in rather good company. Carlyle quoted Burke as saying that in the press gallery sat a "fourth estate," but the record fails to reveal Burke ever said any such thing. Even Caesar, it is said, did not sob, "Et tu, Brute," as Shakespeare would have us believe.

What poor witnesses we must be, when we all can be so wrong in repeating things we think we know so well and are so sure of what we see and hear!

ELECTION HOURS

BILLS submitted to the legislature asked for a reduction in hours of voting at the polling precincts. One bill which lopped off two hours was passed by the senate, then followed by a reconsideration and the bill was defeated.

Minnesota is the slowest state in the union when it comes to compilation of election returns. When the national election was held, the morning papers carried comprehensive reports on the eastern states and their trend indicated the final results. In some cases reports were so complete as to remove states from a doubtful column.

Compare this with Minnesota where only a few straggling precincts were reported. Brainerd was still counting during election night, precluding any definite report to the morning papers. Eastern states, unaware of the election law in force in Minnesota, generally come to the conclusion that Minnesota has the slowest counting boards in the nation, when the election law with its unheard of lengthy hours is to blame for it all.

A new law, reducing voting hours and giving judges and clerks that much more time to count, would expedite results. Any election board that sits from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m., just waiting for ballots to cease falling into the boxes, and then starts its count, is unable to make a rapid return.

By all means let us shorten the voting hours. People can get to the polls before 8 p. m. if a new law sets the closing hour at 8 p. m. Here in Brainerd the heaviest vote is recorded afternoons and evenings, and that vote would be expedited if there were a change in voting hours.

GULL LAKE MAIL SERVICE

WHEN Brainerd people last year heard of the establishment of special mail service on Gull lake for tourists and other summer residents, they wondered that it would be picked up to clear through Nisswa, when that village has so little train service outlet. Some objections were entered at the time and Congressman Harold Knutson of our sixth district has had the whole matter under consideration.

In a letter to Postmaster Carl Adams of Brainerd, under date of April 1, he writes:

"I have just returned from the Post Office Department where I went for the purpose of having the Gull Lake launch mail route handled through the Brainerd office. They are going to write to the contractor and ascertain if he has any objections to getting the mail out at the dam. I find that he has a three-year contract on this route which calls for getting the mail at the Nisswa office. The Department may take this matter up with you also so I am writing to advise you. It might be a good idea to give this information to the local papers in order that the Brainerd people who are interested may know that we are working on it."

"I only returned from a three weeks' cruise to the West Indies and enjoyed it very much. I am now thoroughly rested up and ready for the coming season."

It is hoped this summer resort mail may be collected and made to clear through the Brainerd postoffice. Brainerd, served by two railways, offers better mail facilities and it should be utilized.

On the Billett Case

By AD SCHUSTER

(Copyright.)

ED WYLLIE'S second case, since he had installed himself behind a lettered door as a detective, came to him through his old friend on the police force, Captain Brown.

"We have cleaned it up to a certain point," the captain explained, "but there is a chance you will go a bit farther. Want to try?"

"You mean," said Ed, "the Billett murder? Sure. I have been giving it a lot of thought."

Ralph Billett, business man, had been found dead in his office. An open file case with papers strewn on the floor indicated the murderer had been seeking a letter or document.

Perhaps he had not meant to kill his man, for the police determined that the blow on the jaw would not have been fatal had not the victim fallen in a way to strike his head on a corner of his desk. Captain Brown went over the details with Ed, concluding:

"That is the layout. Now, of course, we must find out with whom Billett had business dealings."

The young detective visited the office of Billett and tried to reconstruct the crime. It was plain that no man would have dared fire a revolver in a place with walls so thin and with so many offices adjoining.

The blow had come straight and unexpected and behind it a cool calculation that there would be no outcry and no struggle. Ed opened the filing case, made certain the position of the desk had not been changed and lost himself in study. Several times he shut and opened the steel drawer of the case. At last three came a thought—a theory worth exploring.

"Well, you will have to hurry," Captain Brown laughed over the phone. "We are getting close to our man and may have him in jail before you get started."

"If you will take a tip from me and save yourself the danger of legal action," Ed replied, "you will make no arrests until you hear from me." He hung up the receiver confident he had made an impression and a little fearful that he did not possess the information to carry it out.

Early the next morning Ed visited the Billett home. There he found a nephew of Ralph Billett in charge and also a police officer. Plainly the nephew was worried, but not so much so as his young wife, who kept glancing fearfully at the policeman.

"He's the man Brown's after," Ed decided. "They are just waiting until they get enough to make the pinch. At any time the phone may ring and I rather think he knows it."

"I wish to see," said Ed, "the suit of clothes Mr. Billett was wearing at the time he met his death."

With the air of a man performing a distasteful duty and one he considered of little use, the nephew took Ed into another room where the young detective glowed with pride as he had the opportunity to use his microscope in an important case.

"And now," said Ed, studying the nephew closely, "I am going to telephone Captain Brown to come here. I think we are at the end of the search."

The other sighed and seemed relieved. "I hope you are. It's been a fearful strain on Alice and me. We had to come; there were no others and your Captain Brown has been asking us all manner of questions."

While they waited for the captain, Ed arranged the room with table and a bookcase to resemble, in a way, the one in which Ralph Billett had been killed. The bookcase stood for the filing cabinet and the table for the desk. Captain Brown did not tatter in coming and the lad started his explanation.

"Pretend I am Billett alone in my office," he started. "I go to the filing case for a letter, look at it and put it back, slamming the drawer shut. My coat sleeve catches and the drawer is stuck tight. I jerk and the coat won't come out so I reach around—it is my left sleeve that is caught—take hold of the handle and pull. Still it doesn't open and I give it a ferocious tug."

He went through the motions and was standing in front of the case. "The steel door flies open. It strikes me on the tip of the jaw for a clean knockout and I fall back, hitting the table. That is how Ralph Billett met his death. It was a pure accident."

The nephew and his wife looked at Ed in admiration.

"It is so simple," he said, "I wonder why we did not think of that before."

But Captain Brown, nodding slowly as if impressed, was far from convinced.

"Go on," he said, "carry it out. If that is as far as you went there is a lot to be done before I am with you."

"All right. Measure the height of the filing case drawer. It could hit a man of Billett's height, when he was leaning slightly, square on the chin. Examine it for blood and you will find a trace. Then take a look at the left sleeve of the coat Billett was wearing. There is a tear there, a pinch and tear, both visible. And the coat was nearly new and not likely to be torn in any other accident. You will even find," and Ed was triumphant, "a bit of the red lacquer of the filing case rubbed into that coat when that drawer closed upon it."

And the young detective, feeling that at last he had arrived, made his bow and departed.

Self-Preservation

"How did you ever sum up the nerve to beat up that bandit and save your pay?" asked the friend of Henry Pack.

"Well," sighed Henry, "I knew what I'd get if I went home without it, so I decided I'd rather take my chances with him than with Henrietta."

First Armored Ships

The first real armored vessels were the floating batteries used at the siege of Gibraltar in 1782. France was the first to produce a seagoing armored ship. Four were commenced in 1853. The first to be completed was the Gloire. In 1861 the United States congress passed an act providing for armored vessels. Under the provisions of this act the Galena, the New Ironsides and the Monitor were built.

ED WYLIE'S second case, since he had installed himself behind a lettered door as a detective, came to him through his old friend on the police force, Captain Brown.

"We have cleaned it up to a certain point," the captain explained, "but there is a chance you will go a bit farther. Want to try?"

"You mean," said Ed, "the Billett murder? Sure. I have been giving it a lot of thought."

Ralph Billett, business man, had been found dead in his office. An open file case with papers strewn on the floor indicated the murderer had been seeking a letter or document.

Perhaps he had not meant to kill his man, for the police determined that the blow on the jaw would not have been fatal had not the victim fallen in a way to strike his head on a corner of his desk. Captain Brown went over the details with Ed, concluding:

"That is the layout. Now, of course, we must find out with whom Billett had business dealings."

The young detective visited the office of Billett and tried to reconstruct the crime. It was plain that no man would have dared fire a revolver in a place with walls so thin and with so many offices adjoining. The blow had come straight and unexpected and behind it a cool calculation that there would be no outcry and no struggle. Ed opened the filing case, made certain the position of the desk had not been changed and lost himself in study. Several times he shut and opened the steel drawer of the case. At last three came a thought—a theory worth exploring.

"Well, you will have to hurry," Captain Brown laughed over the phone. "We are getting close to our man and may have him in jail before you get started."

"If you will take a tip from me and save yourself the danger of legal action," Ed replied, "you will make no arrests until you hear from me." He hung up the receiver confident he had made an impression and a little fearful that he did not possess the information to carry it out.

Early the next morning Ed visited the Billett home. There he found a nephew of Ralph Billett in charge and also a police officer. Plainly the nephew was worried, but not so much so as his young wife, who kept glancing fearfully at the policeman.

"He's the man Brown's after," Ed decided. "They are just waiting until they get enough to make the pinch. At any time the phone may ring and I rather think he knows it."

"I wish to see," said Ed, "the suit of clothes Mr. Billett was wearing at the time he met his death."

With the air of a man performing a distasteful duty and one he considered of little use, the nephew took Ed into another room where the young detective glowed with pride as he had the opportunity to use his microscope in an important case.

"And now," said Ed, studying the nephew closely, "I am going to telephone Captain Brown to come here. I think we are at the end of the search."

The other sighed and seemed relieved. "I hope you are. It's been a fearful strain on Alice and me. We had to come; there were no others and your Captain Brown has been asking us all manner of questions."

While they waited for the captain, Ed arranged the room with table and a bookcase to resemble, in a way, the one in which Ralph Billett had been killed. The bookcase stood for the filing cabinet and the table for the desk. Captain Brown did not loiter in coming and the lad started his explanation.

"Pretend I am Billett alone in my office," he started. "I go to the filing case for a letter, look at it and put it back, slamming the drawer shut. My coat sleeve catches and the drawer is stuck tight. I jerk and the coat won't come out so I reach around—it is my left sleeve that is caught—take hold of the handle and pull. Still it doesn't open and I give it a ferocious tug."

He went through the motions and was standing in front of the case. "The steel door flies open. It strikes me on the tip of the jaw for a clean knockout and I fall back, hitting the table. That is how Ralph Billett met his death. It was a pure accident."

The nephew and his wife looked at Ed in admiration.

"It is so simple," he said, "I wonder why we did not think of that before."

But Captain Brown, nodding slowly as if impressed, was far from convinced.

"Go on," he said, "carry it out. If that is as far as you went there is a lot to be done before I am with you."

"All right. Measure the height of the filing case drawer. It could hit a man of Billett's height, when he was leaning slightly, square on the chin. Examine it for blood and you will find a trace. Then take a look at the left sleeve of the coat Billett was wearing. There is a tear there, a pinch and tear, both visible. And the coat was nearly new and not likely to be torn in any other accident. You will even find," and Ed was triumphant, "a bit of the red lacquer of the filing case rubbed into that coat when that drawer closed upon it."

And the young detective, feeling that at last he had arrived, made his bow and departed.

HAD ITS COMPENSATIONS

Visitor—Are you going to be a great man when you grow up, Willie?

Willie—You bet! I'm going to be an Arctic explorer.

"I like your spirit, my boy. There is a great deal of glory in a career of that kind."

"Yes, and you don't never have to wash your face unless you want to."

—Stray Stories.

That's Different

"You know, said the husband, for over-stuffed furniture, I am a guest, after giving the living room the once over."

"Yes," growled the husband, "but judging from the way she uses a can opener for getting meals, she doesn't intend to have that kind of a husband around."

Self-Preservation

"How did you ever sum up the nerve to beat up that bandit and save your pay?" asked the friend of Henry Pack.

"Well," sighed Henry, "I knew what I'd get if I went home without it, so I decided I'd rather take my chances with him than with Henrietta."

EATS IT RELIGIOUSLY

"How do you want your steak done?"

"Spiritualistic."

"Huh! Watcha mean?"

"Why just medium."

Erratic Art

Artistic demonstration brings mingled fear and hope. Part seems like "inspiration" and part seems like plain "dope."

Comparing Comforts

"Do you think wealth brings happiness?"

"No," answered Mr. Dustin Stax.

"In days of privation I had more comfort when I was underfed than I am now when I overeat."

Drowned Out

"You have ceased to show a sarcastic wit."

"What's the good of a sarcastic wit," said Miss Cayenne, "when everybody is listening to the big boy who plays a ukulele?"—Washington Star.

Reward of Greatness

"Why do you persist in politics?"

"For several reasons," answered Senator Sorghum. "One of them is the special privilege enjoyed by a government official in parking his motor car."—Washington Star.

Appropriate

"Why does he always speak of his daughter as 'Umbrella'?"

"Because when she leaves the house with some one it's hard to tell when she'll ever get back to it again."

NOT AT NIGHT

Friend—I've heard your husband walks in his sleep at night.

Wife—Don't you believe it, my dear—he never comes home till dawn.

Thinking and Speaking

The plot is growing thicker. Men wonder, as they wait, if they'd solve problems quicker by shortening debate.

What Every Telegrapher Knows

Vick—You say you don't know what love is?

Resinol—Why, of course I do. It's the tenth word in a telegram.

A Lucky Father

"Do your children go in for this wild, modern life?"

"No; they cause us no more worry than bills that have been paid do."

First Armored Ships

The first real armored vessels were the floating batteries used at the siege of Gibraltar in 1757. France was the first to produce a seagoing armored ship. Four were commenced in 1853. The first to be completed was the Gloire. In 1861 the United States congress passed an act providing for armored vessels. Under the provisions of this act the Galena, the New Ironsides and the Monitor were built.

11TH ANNUAL NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT NEARING END

TEXAS TEAM HAS EXHIBITED SOME OF BEST BASKETBALL SEEN THERE

By BERT DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, April 5.—A fast rangy aggregation from Athens, Texas, assumed the favorite's position today as eight teams, six of them from the south or southwest, began quarter final play in the eleventh annual national high school basketball tournament.

The Texas team exhibited some of the best basketball seen in the tournament and the type game it played led many to believe that the quintet is capable of winning the title. Pushing Athens for favorite honors were Warren, Ark., College Grove, Tenn., and Classen High, of Oklahoma City, Okla.

The Arkansas team turned in a surprise by defeating Vienna, Ga., 26-24, in one of the best played games of the tournament. Until it ran into Warren, Vienna was the favorite.

College Grove scored a surprising 34-20 victory over the strong Wheeling, W. Va., team after the Tennesseans barely nosed out Moorhead, Minn., 36-29, in an earlier game. Classen, possessor of a great defense, eliminated Ashland, Ky., last year's national champions, 16-14, in a hard fought game.

Other quarter final teams were Jackson, Mich., Wheeler, Miss., Jones, Colo., and Jena, La. The Jackson team defeated Columbia S. C., 27-24, with a last minute drive, and Pocatello, Idaho, 54-30.

Jena is the smallest team remaining in the play and relies on speed and shooting ability. The team has a great player in Wade, a forward, who appears to be one of the best players in the country.

Jena defeated Heath, Ky., the tournament dark horse and a much larger aggregation, 25-23, yesterday.

KASCH OUTLINES SPRING ATHLETICS IN MANY BRANCHES

DONALD GEIST APPOINTED INTERMURAL ATHLETIC MANAGER FOR SPRING SEASON

INTERCLASS KITTENBALL, FIELD AND TRACK MEETS, TENNIS TOURNAMENTS PLANNED

An active spring season is planned for spring athletics in the Brainerd high school under the leadership of Coach Warren Kasch.

Coach Kasch has appointed Donald Geist as intermural athletic manager for the spring season.

An interclass kittenball league will be started this year for the first time in high school athletics. It was planned to start this last year but the burning of the high school interfered. It is planned that each class team play each other once and if time will permit to play a second round.

Baseball will not be definitely arranged until the district group has been organized. The possibility of such a district group will depend on the number of teams desiring to enter. Brainerd will enter if a schedule can be formed.

Tennis
Tennis tournaments for boys and girls divisions will also be a part of the intermural program. It is expected that the tournaments will be started at the Gregory park courts by April 15. The tournaments will be confined to singles. It was announced today.

Louise Clausen will be in charge of the girls' tournament.

Horseshoes
The horseshoe pitching tournament which was started last year will be continued this year.

Spring Football
Thorough fundamentals in line and backfield have been taken up at various times this week. After the men have drilled more on fundamentals, the more prospective candidates for next year's team will be divided into two equal squads for scrimmage in preparation for next fall. Nothing is being left undone by Coach Kasch in preparation for a strong team.

Field and Track

There will be an inter-class track meet held one week prior to the district track meet which will be held in Little Falls the second week in May. A medal will be given the first place winner in each event. Track and field events will include 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 220 yards, 440 yards, one half mile, 120 yard high hurdles, 220 yard low hurdles, medley relay, one half mile relay, high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shot putt, discus, javelin.

Decathlon
Following the district track meet will be the decathlon which was started for the first time in the Brainerd high last year. The 1928 decathlon was won by Donald McNamara. The meet will determine the best all around athlete in the school. It will be scored by points.

In the third inning the Moose scored their only run, when Brandow doubled and Montgomery singled. The "Oilers" put six mark-ers across in this inning. In the fourth they added three more and in the next inning they put four more over the plate.

Werer, pitching for the winners, struck out six men and allowed four hits. Jarbo and Ed Crust were on the mound for the Moose and were touched for twenty hits.

GOT AWAY FAST LAST YEAR, FINISHED POORLY

REDS WERE IN 5TH PLACE WITH PERCENTAGE OF .513

INDIANS WERE IN 7TH PLACE WITH A PERCENTAGE OF .408

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

New York, April 5. — Two ball clubs hard to classify are the Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Indians. They have all the earmarks of "dark horses."

Both clubs got away fast last season, actually leading the major leagues at one time, but they finished poorly—the Reds in fifth place with a percentage of .513 and the Indians in seventh place with a percentage of .408.

Although the Reds are generally regarded as a second division club this season, Jack Hendricks may get his team "up there" on pitching and defensive strength.

Most baseball fans apparently have forgotten that the Reds were leading the National League race last season until Red Lucas broke his left arm. Adolfo Luque went down with tonsillitis and Jackie May became useless for the remainder of the season.

Hughie Critz and Horace Ford, the National League's leading double play combination, are working better together than ever this spring. The outfield looks better than last season with Evar Swanson considered a "find."

The Reds have six able pitchers in Lucas, Luque, May, Donohue, Rixey and Kolp. Hendricks is counting on Lucas and Kolp to win 20 games each.

It appears that the Indians have the makings of a formidable baseball machine. The millionaire owners are making earnest efforts to build up a winner at Cleveland and they seem to be on the right path.

The Indian outfield is perhaps 50 per cent better than it was last season. Earl Averill, the San Francisco rookie, Dick Porter, the $45,000 Baltimore boy, and Bib Falk, who was dissatisfied with the White Sox, promise to help the Indians considerably.

Joe Sewel has plugged the gap at third base. Jackie Tavener, a shortstop, and Carl Lind at second base are playing great defensive baseball. Lew Fonseca and Johnny Hodapp are stationed at first.

The Indians' pitching is not likely to be any worse than last season. George Uhle is gone but Jimmy Zinn from Kansas City, Wesley Ferrell, a promising youngster from Terre Haute, Ind., and Ken Holloway, obtained from the Tigers, promise to capably replace him.

Big Leagues Want Him

Generally acknowledged as the best shortstop in intercollegiate circles this year, Paul Shenberger of Norristown, Pa., is receiving many offers from the big time for his services, but Paul seems to favor a post with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Shining-eyed and fresh for the hours that count

What man is pleased at the sight of a tired-out wife . . . too borne-down with household duties to try to dress, too weary to look her best for his homecoming?

The women men adore are shining-eyed and fresh, eager for the hours that count.

More and more women today are finding a way to keep young, ten, twenty, even thirty years longer than their mothers.

The great strides of engineering and electrical science have developed marvelous labor-saving devices to relieve women of drudgery. Modern medical science is outwitting middle age by revolutionary discoveries in diet and care of the body.

But it is advertising that has aroused women to a realization of what these new household helps can do. It is advertising that has brought a knowledge of beauty aids and their use. It is advertising that has created a desire for those products which aid women to lead healthier, happier, longer lives.

Always read the advertisements. Keep up with the ever-onward sweep of progress. Do not let yourself be left behind.

PAUL WANER IS AGAIN PITTSBURGH PIRATE TODAY

Fort Worth, Tex., April 5. (U.P.)—Paul Waner was a Pittsburgh Pirate again today following his signing of a contract with the club late yesterday. Waner refused to announce the terms under which he will play but said he was well satisfied. He had been holding out for $18,000.

Waner will appear in the Pirate lineup today when Pittsburgh meets the Detroit Tigers in the second of a three-game exhibition series.

KASCH OUTLINES SPRING ATHLETICS IN MANY BRANCHES

INTERCLASS KITTENBALL, FIELD AND TRACK MEETS, TENNIS TOURNAMENTS PLANNED

An active spring season is planned for spring athletics in the Brainerd high school under the leadership of Coach Warren Kasch.

Coach Kasch has appointed Donald Geist as intermural athletic manager for the spring season.

An interclass kittenball league will be started this year for the first time in high school athletics. It was planned to start this last year but the burning of the high school interfered. It is planned that each class team play each other once and if time will permit to play a second round.

Baseball will not be definitely arranged until the district group has been organized. The possibility of such a district group will depend on the number of teams desiring to enter. Brainerd will enter if a schedule can be formed.

Tennis

Tennis tournaments for boys and girls divisions will also be a part of the intermural program. It is expected that the tournaments will be started at the Gregory park courts by April 15. The tournaments will be confined to singles, it was announced today.

Louise Clausen will be in charge of the girls' tournament.

Horseshoes

The horseshoe pitching tournament which was started last year will be continued this year.

Spring Football

Thorough fundamentals in line and backfield have been taken up at various times this week. After the men have drilled more on fundamentals, the more prospective candidates for next year's team will be divided into two equal squads for scrimmage in preparation for next fall. Nothing is being left undone by Coach Kasch in preparation for a strong team.

Field and Track

There will be an inter-class track meet held one week prior to the district track meet which will be held in Little Falls the second week in May. A medal will be given the first place winner in each event. Track and field events will include 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 220 yards, 440 yards, one half mile, 120 yard high hurdles, 220 yard low hurdles, medley relay, one half mile relay, high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shot putt, discus, javelin.

Decathlon

Following the district track meet will be the decathlon which was started for the first time in the Brainerd high last year. The 1928 decathlon was won by Donald McNamara. The meet will determine the best all around athlete in the school. It will be scored by points.

SINCLAIRS SWAMP MOOSE 18 TO 1 IN LEAGUE HIT FEST

OILERS TAKE LEAD IN FIRST WHEN SODERLUND RAPS OUT HOMER

JARBO AND ED CRUST, MOOSE MOUNDSTERS, TOUCHED FOR 20 HITS

The Sinclair Oil Co. battled their way to an easy victory over the Moose by a score of 18 to 1 last evening.

The Oilers took the lead in the first when Soderlund greeted Jarbo with a home run. In the second inning the Sinclair Oils scored four runs on a triple, two doubles, a single and a walk. In the third inning the Moose scored their only run, when Brandow doubled and Montgomery singled. The "Oilers" put six mark-ers across in this inning. In the fourth they added three more and in the next inning they put four more over the plate.

Werger, pitching for the winners, struck out six men and allowed four hits. Jarbo and Ed Crust were on the mound for the Moose and were touched for twenty hits.

Tonight if rain doesn't cause the game to be postponed, the Bye Clothing Co. will meet the Nash-Finch Co.

Best Basketbatters

Only Natural

There is so much material on every hand that it is only natural that most men are materialists.

LOOKS PROMISING

Johnny Watwood, who joined the Chicago White Sox after leaving Shreveport, has been hitting them out during the training season. He is expected to give the veteran outfielders a good scare for their positions if he doesn't actually dislodge one of them.

Sets Medley Record

Walter Spence swam the 300-yd. medley just 3 and 2-3 seconds faster than anyone else ever did to win the event in the National championships being held in New York. His time was 3 minutes and 40 seconds flat.

GOT AWAY FAST LAST YEAR, FINISHED POORLY

REDS WERE IN 5TH PLACE WITH PERCENTAGE OF .513

INDIANS WERE IN 7TH PLACE WITH A PERCENTAGE OF .408

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

New York, April 5. — Two ball clubs hard to classify are the Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Indians. They have all the earmarks of "dark horses."

Both clubs got away fast last season, actually leading the major leagues at one time, but they finished poorly—the Reds in fifth place with a percentage of .513 and the Indians in seventh place with a percentage of .408.

Although the Reds are generally regarded as a second division club this season, Jack Hendricks may get his team "up there" on pitching and defensive strength.

Most baseball fans apparently have forgotten that the Reds were leading the National League race last season until Red Lucas broke his left arm. Adolfo Luque went down with tonsillitis and Jackie May became useless for the remainder of the season.

Hughie Critz and Horace Ford, the National League's leading double play combination, are working better together than ever this spring. The outfield looks better than last season with Evar Swanson considered a "find."

The Reds have six able pitchers in Lucas, Luque, May, Donohue, Rixey and Kolp. Hendricks is counting on Lucas and Kolp to win 20 games each.

It appears that the Indians have the makings of a formidable baseball machine. The millionaire owners are making earnest efforts to build up a winner at Cleveland and they seem to be on the right path.

The Indian outfield is perhaps 50 per cent better than it was last season. Earl Averill, the San Francisco rookie, Dick Porter, the $45,000 Baltimore boy, and Bib Falk, who was dissatisfied with the White Sox, promise to help the Indians considerably.

Joe Sewel has plugged the gap at third base. Jackie Tavener, a shortstop, and Carl Lind at second base are playing great defensive baseball. Lew Fonseca and Johnny Hodapp are stationed at first.

The Indians' pitching is not likely to be any worse than last season. George Uhle is gone but Jimmy Zinn from Kansas City, Wesley Ferrell, a promising youngster from Terre Haute, Ind., and Ken Holloway, obtained from the Tigers, promise to capably replace him.

Big Leagues Want Him

Generally acknowledged as the best shortstop in intercollegiate circles this year, Paul Shenberger of Norristown, Pa., is receiving many offers from the big time for his services, but Paul seems to favor a post with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Shining-eyed and fresh for the hours that count

What man is pleased at the sight of a tired-out wife . . . too borne-down with household duties to try to dress, too weary to look her best for his homecoming?

The women men adore are shining-eyed and fresh, eager for the hours that count.

More and more women today are finding a way to keep young, ten, twenty, even thirty years longer than their mothers.

The great strides of engineering and electrical science have developed marvelous labor-saving devices to relieve women of drudgery. Modern medical science is outwitting middle age by revolutionary discoveries in diet and care of the body.

But it is advertising that has aroused women to a realization of what these new household helps can do. It is advertising that has brought a knowledge of beauty aids and their use. It is advertising that has created a desire for those products which aid women to lead healthier, happier, longer lives.

Always read the advertisements. Keep up with the ever-onward sweep of progress. Do not let yourself be left behind.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Various Societies and Organizations of Church Report Successful Year

The spirit of enthusiasm prevailed in the annual meeting of the First Presbyterian church held last evening in the main auditorium.

Devotions were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Alexander G. Patterson, who was elected moderator, Charles Risk, clerk of the congregation. The treasurer, John Carlson, reported that the bills were all paid and a nice balance remaining in the treasury. The treasurer of the building fund, M. E. Morrison, reported that a steady stream of money was coming in to be applied on the building indebtedness. The treasurer of benevolences, Mrs. J. A. McKay gave an encouraging report. The report of the ladies aid was the marvel of all. That organization paid out last year more than $2200. An interesting addition to the report was given by Mrs. George Putz who has been treasurer of the society for ten years. In that time the society has made and paid out more than $11,000.

The Missionary society rejoiced in making their apportionment. Full reports were given by all the Young Peoples organizations. It was revealed that the newest organization of the church was a rapidly growing men's organization. Mrs. Fred Luken gave a detailed report of the Sunday school and J. A. McKay, the treasurer, said there was a balance in the treasury.

Albert Erickson, Charles Risk and Oscar Erickson were elected elders for a term of three years. Fred Luken, M. E. Morrison and C. D. McKay were elected trustees for a term of three years.

A vote of thanks was tendered M. E. Morrison, treasurer of the building fund, Mrs. Fred Luken, financial secretary of the church and building fund, and John Carlson treasurer of the church.

A social time was held after the meeting in the lower rooms of the church. Refreshments were served by a committee of the ladies aid. At this time the congregation surprised the pastor by a gift of appreciation of a substantial check. M. E. Morrison presented the gift. The pastor replied in a few tender remarks.

Ants by the Millions Used to Worry Beetles

"Without Black Ants No Cocoa," reads a sign posted at the entrance of a great plantation in Central Java. It does not go unheeded, either, for the natives hand in some 4,000,000 nests of these little creatures every year, and receive payment in return. These black ants live upon trees infested by the white cocoa louse.

Neither the louse nor the ants injure the trees. The real enemy is a certain beetle whose name is Helopeltis, which also attacks the tea plant. It has been found that when the black ants are present the Helopeltis fails to injure the trees. Apparently this sap-sucking pest is disturbed by the activity of the ants, for the latter do not attack the beetle.

This is why the black ants are protected. Food is provided for them by picking the white cocoa louse from the shells of the fruit, where they congregate, and placing them on the cocoa trees to attract the ants and disturb the beetles.

Inquiry Halted

The action of Judge Francis A. Winslow, above, in resigning from the Federal bench in the face of grave charges in the New York inquiry into bankruptcy courts, will only temporarily halt the government's further action to eradicate these scandals.

Another was thrown overboard off Cape Horn, southernmost point of the South American mainland and drifted to New Zealand, a distance of about 10,250 miles.

ACTION DEFERRED ON CORNER STONE RITES

536 Sign Petition Asking School Board to Permit Masonic Rites

CONTROVERSY THREATENS

Opinion Expressed That Ceremonies Should be Conducted to Please All

Action on the request outlined in a petition with 536 signers to grant to the Grand Lodge of Minnesota Free and Accepted Masons the privilege of holding a fitting public ceremony for the laying of the corner stone in the construction of the Washington high school building was deferred at the recent meeting of the Board of Education until some special meeting of the board to be held prior to the next regular meeting.

Members of the board in deferring action did so for the reason that the public should be permitted a voice in the matter concerning the corner stone laying of the new high school, such a matter being of concern to all citizens of the city.

It was felt that the corner stone laying should be conducted in a public manner with no particular organization favored.

Teachers Relected

All teachers on the staff at the present were recommended for reelection and in a few instances recommendations were made for increases of salary, mostly in cases of lower paid instructors. The report of the teachers committee making the recommendations was accepted and recommendations adopted.

On motion the matter of rental of a suitable place for the holding of the commencement exercises was left in the hands of a special committee to whom was referred the task of securing a speaker for this occasion.

Camp Dates

The starting dates will be the same for both camp Nawakwa and camp Clearwater. Register now and get your pick.

- 1st camp June 23-30.
- 2nd camp June 30, July 7.
- 3rd camp July 7-14.
- 4th camp July 14-21.
- 5th camp July 21-28.
- 6th camp July 28, August 4.

There will be many special features at the camps this year and we can promise you plenty of good eats. Get registered at once. Camps will be run as long as we have a minimum of 40 boys per week. The staffs and personnel of each camp will be announced in a special bulletin very shortly.

The Brainerd district round up will take place Saturday evening, 7:30 o'clock May 4 at the Lum Park pavilion. Every scout and every troop should be there to win for the troop and the institution you represent.

The Brainerd Board of Review takes place Saturday, April 6 at the court house, 9 A. M. and 2 P. M. All scouts seeking advancement be there. The Court of Honor takes place Sunday, 4 P. M. at the Methodist church, April 14. The entire public is especially urged to attend.

CARD OF THANKS

I thank all the voters for their confidence, as shown by the vote given me at the election.

FAIL TO FIND TRACE OF GIRLS

Brainerd High School Freshman Missing Nine Days Hide Whereabouts From Police

HAD LITTLE MONEY

Police Comb Minneapolis and St. Paul; Believed Working in Twin Cities

The hunt for two Brainerd high school girls in their freshman year who disappeared from Brainerd nine days ago was continued today by the police of Minneapolis and St. Paul without success.

Authorities here are of the opinion that the girls, Ruth Vogt, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Vogt, 623 F street N. E. and Helen Figge, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Figge, 315 Third avenue, had secured employment in the Twin Cities upon their arrival.

They left Brainerd by bus on the morning of March 27 for Minneapolis with little more than five dollars after paying for their transportation.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the voters of the Fifth Ward for the support they gave me at the recent election.

For the last eighteen months recruiting has been on a restricted basis from this territory. The recruiting officer being allowed to send in only two and sometimes three men each month, from fourteen counties. Judging from the record of the past six months, the young men, and the parents, of this territory, fully realize the importance of the Navy not only as a necessity for defense, but its value as one of the greatest educational institutions of the country. Many of these boys are now attending the Naval electrical, machinist, coppersmith, boilermaker, blacksmith, musician radio and aviation schools. Some are no doubt in foreign countries, and many of them are on ships up and down our coasts. They see new sights every day, and constantly gain a practical education through travel, that money cannot buy.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife, Lilith, that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina, his daughter by Irene, a dazzling brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester, she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton, to whom he was engaged. Lilith, shaken with anger and bitterness, learns she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy secretly care for her in New York to prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant's premature birth and death they return home with Lilith. Happiness prevails as Tina is preparing wedding plans for her marriage to a handsome local lad. They will tour the world on their honeymoon. Irene is torn by happiness for Tina and fear for Lilith's shame becoming known. Lilith slowly recovers—more beautiful than ever and her father's idol. He forbids her return to New York. Likewise he denies Tina permission for an early wedding date. Dan, Tina's fiancé, is conscious of Lilith's exquisite beauty. An atmosphere of tense forboding permeates the house as the wedding date nears. Sheba the cook sings voodoo songs.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LXXI.

THEIR wild ride had carried them farther than Dan had realized, so that, go as fast as he would, the journey back was long. It was made in silence that mocked them both as cowards. As they rode back home through the gathering dusk, Lilith watched the trees and houses whirl past, as if they were some strange form of art; watched the white rigidity of Dan's face turned away from her. He had been savage—and only love or hate made men savage. He didn't hate her.

They reached home long after the supper hour, to find the family gathered on the front porch. Tina ran down the steps to meet them.

"Dan, I've been scared stiff! I couldn't think where you were. And we thought Lilith was lost, too."

"We were lost together, but perfectly safe," Lilith flashed her brilliant smile.

"I'm sorry. Didn't know it was so late," Dan murmured in apology.

"Come in and have some supper," said Irene.

When Sheba entered the dining room in response to Tina's call, she shot a look of cold malignancy at Lilith.

Lilith took only a glass of iced tea and then said, "I have a headache. I think I'll go to bed."

Upstairs in her room she sat before her dressing table, awaiting her face with cold cream. Her thoughts seethed—but one must cold cream one's face, no matter what happens to pride. The clumsy fool had thwarted her. But there were five days left.

A knock sounded at her door. "Come in. Oh, damn!"

Irene entered and came close to the girl.

"It was thoughtless of you, Lilith, to go off with Dan like that."

"Thoughtless?" The arched eyebrows lifted, in a gesture that lost something of dignity on account of the cold cream. Not thoughtless, no.

"Inconsiderate. Tina was worried when he didn't come or phone."

"So? Did she think her bridegroom had eloped with me?"

"She thought something might have happened to him."

"Well, something might have happened to him—but as it chances, it didn't. He was perfectly safe."

Irene moved closer to her. "We must make Tina's last little while at home as happy as we can, dear. In just five days she'll be married and gone."

"Yes, the time is short."

Lilith stroked her cheeks with upward movements, scanning her countenance in the mirror. The sleeveless blue chiffon negligee revealed all the graceful movements of her white arms, all the beauty of her neck and shoulders that gleamed perfect under the light from the rose-shaded lamp on the dressing table.

Downstairs Tina was softly touching the piano keys, and then she began to sing a foolish little love song that Dan liked. Dan would be bending over her in devotion, doing penance for his mental unfaithfulness.

Lilith was almost blinded by her swift hatred of them both, of her father, her stepmother, of Sheba wait till I've had a cup of coffee!"

"Yes, hurry."

"I know I'm a poor substitute for Lil, but since I'm going to leave you for a year maybe you can put up with me this once."

The jesting tenderness of her tone trailed off as Tina raced about her room in the business of dressing.

That noon, as the family sat at the table, Sheba answered the telephone and came back to the dining room.

"Mister Dan at the 'phone," she announced.

Tina sprang up, her face irradiated as always at the mention of his name.

But Sheba raised her hand in arresting gesture. "He says he wants to speak to Miss Lily."

"Oh, does he?" Tina subsided in her chair.

Lilith excused herself and went into the hall. "Hello."

"Lilith," came Dan's impetuous voice. "I wanted to speak to you."

"Yes?"

"I wanted to explain—about yesterday. Are you going to be downtown today?"

"Perhaps."

"If—if you were where you were yesterday, at the same time, I could meet you—and bring you home. How about it?"

"Perhaps."

"Do, Lilith," he urged.

"Good-by," she said softly, and then she hung up the receiver.

She stood for a moment, her hand on the telephone table. Then she moved lightly up the stairs to her room and closed the door.

(To Be Continued.)

With furtive gestures Sheba cleaned the hair from the comb, wrapped it around her finger and tucked it in her bosom.

Bring Happiness and Comfort to Dependent Minnesota Families

Value of Life Insurance

By W. A. Fraser

Life insurance has saved many families from going to the poorhouse.

Life insurance has made it possible for children to continue with their education.

Life insurance has eliminated misery; has kept the wolf from the door of widows and orphans; has brought comfort in old age.

It is a dawn of hope that will reveal itself when days of sorrow have come.

W. A. Fraser

MARVELOUS story of the misery that has been eliminated and the happiness and comfort that has been brought to thousands of Minnesota families whose providers were members of the Woodmen of the World is strongly emphasized by figures compiled by W. A. Fraser, sovereign commander of the Woodmen of the World.

Sovereign Commander Fraser's figures showed that the Woodmen of the World life insurance association has paid $1,709,692 in death claims to families of this state since the Woodmen of the World started to do business here in 1891.

"Just think what these millions of dollars paid in insurance benefits have meant to these families whose providers were snatched away from them and their regular incomes stopped," said Sovereign Commander Fraser. "One does not have to stretch his imagination to realize what this money has done for the widows and the orphans of the families of this state. If these bread-winners had not been insured, think of the great misery which would have come into the lives of the wives and children through no fault of their own. Just a little thoughtfulness on the part of the fathers and husbands of these families brought untold happiness, gave the children a chance for an education, kept many families out of orphan asylums and poorhouses and in this way saved the taxpayers of the state thousands of dollars. The Woodmen of the World has been glad to pay these claims and bring this happiness to these many thousands of families of this state.

"The marvelous record of the Woodmen of the World can be traced greatly to the loyalty and enthusiastic support given us by the people of this state. We enjoy doing business here and we hope we will always be able to play an important part in bringing happiness and future security to the families of this state who suffer the loss of their bread winners."

"The maintenance of the War Memorial hospital at San Antonio, Texas is one of the great services performed by the Woodmen of the World. Patients are cared for free of charge in an institution that contains every possible means of renewing the health of our members. Of the 3,000 patients that have been cared for a majority have been returned to their homes cured and in a position to become useful citizens of the nationwide communities in which they live."

Mr. Fraser announced that the Woodmen of the World is 103% solvent and now has $89,000,000 in municipal bond holdings in its reserve. A large portion of these bonds have been invested in this state, thus aiding in the building of the state's roads, schools, and various public improvements.

"The Woodmen of the World is now the richest fraternal life insurance association in the world," said Mr. Fraser.

Sun's Rays

Direct rays of sunshine are almost instantly fatal to various kinds of disease germs and prolonged exposure will kill even the most virulent microbes. The reaction of the human body to disease is greatly influenced by the number of hours one spends each day in the sunshine and open air. Sunshine is the fountain of all earthly energy. If the sun should suddenly be extinguished in eight minutes the earth would be in total darkness and would cool so rapidly that all life would soon perish.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife, Lilith, that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina, his daughter by Irene, a dazzling brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester, she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton, to whom he was engaged. Lilith, shaken with anger and bitterness, learns she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy secretly care for her in New York to prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant's premature birth and death they return home with Lilith. Happiness prevails as Tina is preparing wedding plans for her marriage to a handsome local lad. They will tour the world on their honeymoon. Irene is torn by happiness for Tina and fear for Lilith's shame becoming known. Lilith slowly recovers—more beautiful than ever and her father's idol. He forbids her return to New York. Likewise he denies Tina permission for an early wedding date. Dan, Tina's fiancé, is conscious of Lilith's exquisite beauty. An atmosphere of tense foreboding permeates the house as the wedding date nears. Sheba the cook sings voodoo songs.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LXXI.

THEIR wild ride had carried them farther than Dan had realized, so that, go as fast as he would, the journey back was long. It was made in silence that mocked them both as cowards. As they rode back home through the gathering dusk, Lilith watched the trees and houses whirl past, as if they were some strange form of art, watched the white rigidity of Dan's face turned away from her. He had been savage—and only love or hate made men savage. He didn't hate her. . . .

They reached home long after the supper hour, to find the family gathered on the front porch. Tina ran down the steps to meet them.

"Dan, I've been scared stiff! I couldn't think where you were. And we thought Lilith was lost, too."

"We were lost together, but perfectly safe," Lilith flashed her brilliant smile.

"I'm sorry. Didn't know it was so late," Dan murmured in apology.

"Come in and have some supper," said Irene.

When Sheba entered the dining room in response to Tina's call, she shot a look of cold malignancy at Lilith.

Lilith took only a glass of iced tea and then said, "I have a headache. I think I'll go to bed."

Upstairs in her room she sat before her dressing table, anointing her face with cold cream. Her thoughts seethed—but one must cold cream one's face, no matter what happens to pride. The clumsy fool had thwarted her. But there were five days left. . . .

A knock sounded at her door. "Come in. Oh, damn!"

Irene entered and came close to the girl.

"It was thoughtless of you, Lilith, to go off with Dan like that."

"Thoughtless?" The arched eyebrows lifted, in a gesture that lost something of dignity on account of the cold cream. Not thoughtless, no.

"Inconsiderate. Tina was worried when he didn't come or phone."

"So? Did she think her bridegroom had eloped with me?"

"She thought something might have happened to him—but as it chances, it didn't. He was perfectly safe."

Irene moved closer to her. "We must make Tina's last little while at home as happy as we can, dear. In just five days she'll be married and gone."

"Yes, the time is short."

Lilith stroked her cheeks with upward movements, scanning her countenance in the mirror. The sleeveless blue chiffon negligee revealed all the graceful movements of her white arms, all the beauty of her neck and shoulders that gleamed perfect under the light from the rose-shaded lamp on the dressing table.

Downstairs Tina was softly touching the piano keys, and then she began to sing a foolish little love song that Dan liked. Dan would be bending over her in devotion, doing penance for his mental unfaithfulness.

Lilith was almost blinded by her swift hatred of them both, of her father, her stepmother, of Sheba in the kitchen. She hated the whole world because of her misery and the shame it put upon her. Why should she consider Tina or her mother or anyone?

She went on massaging the cold cream into her skin with careful upward strokes.

Irene turned away. She paused as she had her hand on the door knob. "Good night, Lilith. Pleasant dreams."

"Good night, Mother."

When the door had closed and her stepmother's footsteps had faded out of hearing down the hall, Lilith sat with upraised hands for an instant, tense, rigid, a sculptured despair.

Then she flung her arms across the dressing table, laid her face against them, smudging off the cold cream.

"Oh, Bill! how could you?"

The next morning Lilith was still in bed when Sheba came in to tidy her room. Through half-closed eyelids she watched the woman slip about hanging up clothes, putting away shoes, dusting with a slinky resentfulness as if the task were a hateful one to her. She paused before the dressing table and shot a quick glance toward the bed, but Lilith gave every appearance of being asleep.

When Sheba's back was turned Lilith opened her eyes with languid curiosity and watched her reflection in the mirror. The black face was contorted with cunning and malice, so that the girl almost started up in fright. But she lay still and watched to see what she would do.

With furtive gestures Sheba cleaned the hair from the comb, wrapped it around her finger and tucked it in her bosom.

wait till I've had a cup of coffee?"

"Yes. Hurry."

"I know I'm a poor substitute for Lil, but since I'm going to leave you for a year maybe you can put up with me this once."

The jesting tenderness of her tone trailed off as Tina raced about her room in the business of dressing.

That noon, as the family sat at the table, Sheba answered the telephone and came back to the dining room.

"Mister Dan at the 'phone," she announced.

Tina sprang up, her face irradiated as always at the mention of his name.

But Sheba raised her hand in arresting gesture. "He say he want to speak to Miss Lily."

"Oh, does he?" Tina subsided in her chair.

Lilith excused herself and went into the hall. "Hello."

"Lilith," came Dan's impetuous voice. "I wanted to speak to you."

"Yes?"

"I wanted to explain—about yesterday. Are you going to be downtown today?"

"Perhaps."

"If—if you were where you were yesterday, at the same time, I could meet you—and bring you home. How about it?"

"Perhaps."

"Do, Lilith," he urged.

"Good-by," she said softly, and then she hung up the receiver.

She stood for a moment, her hand on the telephone table. Then she moved lightly up the stairs to her room and closed the door.

(To Be Continued.)

"What a queer thing to do! You'd think she was stealing something," Lilith told herself. Then she closed her eyes. "Old Sheba must be going crazy."

"Girls, time to get up," called Irene in the hall. "This is Thursday and so much to be done. We have all got to fly around these days."

"Be right down," came Tina's sleepy voice that held a joyous note even in its laziness.

Tina could wake up with happy thoughts, could look forward to a day that held love and pride for her, while she—

Lilith called out wearily, "Yes, Mother, I'm coming."

Sheba slunk out of the room with a backward glance as Lilith sat up on the edge of the bed. The hall clock struck nine. As if any human hour were of significance to anyone! The sound of the grass scissors clipping the borders on the law cut through the silence, and a breeze flapped past the white curtains to touch her fevered cheeks with coolness.

Her father called up the stairway. "Lilith, want to drive with me to see a couple of sick?"

"I believe not, Father."

"I'll go with you, Dad," Tina's gay voice called out. "Can you
